

Summer 2017 Workshops

Join us this summer as we celebrate the launch of the Society's Center for the Teaching of History!

All workshops offer Professional Development Points. Two graduate credits per workshop are available for an additional fee. Visit the Society's web calendar to RSVP (www.masshist.org/events), or contact the Center at: kbarker@masshist.org; 617-646-0557.

The American Revolution in Art & Artifacts

Wednesday & Thursday, July 19 & 20
$35 per person

Explore portraits, artifacts, songs, plays, and other art forms created during the Revolution! Using the collections of the MHS and the Museum of Fine Arts, participants will investigate a variety of visual and aural primary sources, and model tools for using these kinds of materials with students.

America in World War I

Tuesday and Thursday, July 25 & 27
$35 per person

How did Massachusetts men and women experience World War I? Participants will immerse themselves in the letters, diaries, and photographs created by soldiers, Red Cross volunteers, and relief workers, among others. Whether they were at home or abroad, these individuals provide a glimpse of the challenges and occasional pleasures of life during times of war.

Red Cross worker standing in front of a grave marked with a cross and flowers

Teaching LGBTQ History

Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, August 2-4
$50 per person

This workshop will explore ideas about sexual orientation and gender identity through the lives of New Englanders. Our investigations will take us from the Puritan era through the twenty-first century, as well as to local repositories and historic sites. Participants will also work with primary sources and curricular materials that will help contextualize current debates over LGBTQ rights.

Boston City Hall

Food in American History

Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, August 9-11
$50 per person

Experience food through historical accounts and field trips to local producers and providers! Participants will investigate topics such as the trade in chocolate, tea, and coffee in the colonial era; food reform movements of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries; and the role of food in war propaganda in WWI and WWII.

Benjamin Franklin's milk
punch recipe, 1763

You are receiving this email because you have expressed an interest in the Massachusetts Historical Society's education programs. Be sure to add education@masshist.org to your address book to continue receiving our messages.

Copyright © 2017. All Rights Reserved.