Caring for a Child or Adolescent Exposed to Trauma

Caring for a child or adolescent exposed to trauma can be an extremely rewarding experience, but the significant distress and needs of children with trauma histories are often challenging. Oftentimes, caregivers feel overwhelmed when confronted with challenging behaviors and symptoms demonstrated by trauma-exposed children. The purpose of this workshop is to increase caregivers' understanding of underlying factors that lead to challenges in caring for a trauma-impacted child. Specific strategies focused on addressing the needs and social-emotional learning competencies of trauma-impacted children/adolescents will be provided.
